From the Pastor

Come, Holy Spirit!

If you've been a catechism student of mine, or studied the Gospels of Luke or John with me, or if you've heard me preach on Pentecost or Trinity Sunday, or numerous other times, you've probably heard much of this. Nevertheless, I'm not sure that I've ever committed these ideas to paper (or ether), and with Pentecost just around the corner, the time's never been better.

The Holy Spirit has probably been the most mysterious and misunderstood person of the Trinity. Most of us have a clear conception of who is God the Father; many would argue that the notion of God as creator is the most basic, most common understanding of divinity. While we may not understand the precise way in which God brought the creation into being, many generations have known the divine by God's creative work. Likewise, we understand who Jesus was (and is). The Gospels consist of stories about Jesus' life among us, and the remainder of the New Testament enriches our understanding and knowledge of God the Son. The Holy Spirit is more elusive. While it may not seem strange that God is spirit (and it may make more sense to the average person than the notion that God took on human flesh in Christ), defining the Spirit's work or divining the Spirit's presence will often be elusive.

I'm no linguist, and one of my regrets in life is not having studied Hebrew in seminary when I had the chance. However, I did study biblical Greek and still use it to some extent, and I've learned enough about a few Hebrew words to know something about the words for "spirit" in both languages. Pneuma in Greek and ruach in Hebrew are often rendered by biblical translators as "spirit" in English.

It's fascinating to note that both words have two other meanings, which, while related, are not so obvious in our tongue. Both pneuma and ruach can also express the notions of "wind," "air," and "breath." When we consider the ways in which these concepts figure into the biblical narrative, we gain great insight into the work and identity of the Holy Spirit. Consider that, in Genesis 1:2, "a wind from God swept over the [primordial] waters.” A footnote in my NRSV tells us that “wind from God” can also be translated, “the spirit of God.” Note too that, in Genesis 2:7, God creates the first man from the dust of the ground. Only when God breathes into the newly created man does he become a living being. The Spirit (or Wind or Breath) of God initiate creation and give life to its nascent beings. Later in the Old Testament, we find in Ezekiel’s vision of the Valley of Dry Bones in chapter 37, that God commands the prophet to “prophecy to the breath,” and “Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.” And the lifeless bodies are enlivened by the breath (or wind or Spirit) of God. As in the Old Testament, so in the New, the Holy Spirit is regarded as the source of life, including resurrected life.

Moreover, the New Testament concept of the Holy Spirit, while consistent with the OT concept, adds the dimension of Christ. In John’s Gospel, Jesus prepares his disciples for his impending departure by telling them, “I will not leave you orphaned; I am coming to you” (14:18). He says that his Father will send “another Advocate, to be with you forever. This is the Spirit of truth ...” (14:16). If God is sending another Advocate (or helper or counselor – other possible translations of the Greek paracletos), there had to be a first Advocate. That is, naturally, Jesus himself. This other Advocate is the Holy Spirit, “whom the Father will send in my name ... and remind you of all I have said to you.” As the disciples remember what Jesus has taught them, and, as they keep his word, [his] “Father will love them and [Jesus and the Father] will come to them and will make [their] home with them” (14:21, 23). In other words, the Holy Spirit is the presence of Jesus in his apparent absence. While the world cannot see him, the disciples will know he’s there. And where the Son is, so is the Father (and the Holy Spirit). The risen Jesus fulfills the promise of sending the Holy Spirit on Easter night when he breathes (!) on the disciples behind closed doors and says “Receive the Holy Spirit.”

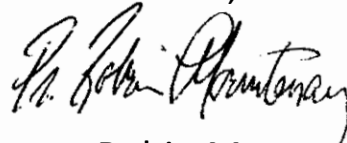

Luke’s approach to the Spirit is very similar to that of John. For Luke the Holy Spirit comes on Pentecost, 10 days after Jesus’ ascension into heaven. Many followers are gathered in Jerusalem, as Jesus had directed them. Suddenly they heard the sound “like the rush of a violent wind” (Acts 2:2). The Holy Spirit descended upon the assembly, and, though they were a diverse group, they suddenly understood one another's language and spoke of God's mighty acts. The Spirit descended, and the Church was born.

As we see throughout Acts, it is the Spirit who equips the fledgling Church to continue the work of Jesus – healing, casting out demons, teaching, and preaching, i.e., making disciples of all nations. It's truly striking in Acts 15:28, as the apostles consider whether keeping Kosher should be required of Gentiles converts, they say, "it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us...." They speak on behalf of the Holy Spirit as if the Holy Spirit had a voice! Jesus had promised the disciples that, in times of persecution, "the Holy Spirit will teach you at that very hour what you ought to say" (Luke 12:12). Later, describing a similar situation, he says, "... I will give you words and a wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict" (Luke 21:15). If it seems that Jesus and the Holy Spirit are almost interchangeable, you recognize just who this Holy Spirit really is!

As we saw in John's Gospel, so we see in the writings of Luke: the Holy Spirit is the presence of Jesus in his apparent absence! Luther says in his Small Catechism, "The Holy Spirit has called me through the Gospel, enlightened me with his gifts, and sanctified me and kept me in true faith. In the same way he calls, gathers, enlightens and sanctifies the whole Christian church on earth..." Likewise, it is the Spirit whom we invoke to bring Christ's presence to the bread and wine of Communion, making these earthly elements his true body and blood. It is this same Spirit through whom new birth is given in Baptism. Though the world doesn't recognize the presence of the risen Lord, we who believe in him know that he is among us: in Word; in Sacrament; and in our life together. Making Christ present is truly the work of the Spirit!

Rudyard Kipling once said, "Gardens are not made by singing 'Oh, how beautiful' and sitting in the shade."

Would you give an hour of your time once a week to keep our church property looking well cared for?

Please contact Alice Hamm, Le Eckert or Carol Cook (our phone numbers are in the church directory).

I had a book discussion group this morning and we all liked the book. This is unusual, why did we all like the book? We liked the main character, I think because we all hoped that we could behave as he did. He had a sad happening in his early life which contributed to how he behaved but we all know he could have allowed it to give him other attitudes. So attitude is important. As life happenings occur, he meets each challenge face on and we liked his chosen decisions. We probably hoped we could do the same. He wasn't a hero in a special sense, he didn't have super powers, he was just an average man living life the best he could, and as a result effecting others in a positive way. Oh... the story had a who done it part too that elicited discussion.

When I thought about doing this today, I thought about the disciples . What do we know about them? What were their attitudes as they followed Jesus? They were average men with doubts and fears, just like us. We can relate to them. We can understand Thomas' doubt and Peter's denials. But they met their challenges and continued. Does this give us hope? Does this tell us that we need to know that we are fine as we are, with the gifts we have been given and just need to face each challenge the best way we can with what we have been given?

Forgive me for a different Make life easy this month, I do believe that sometimes God leads me in what I should be writing about.

Happy spring! As I write this, it hasn't arrived yet. So, tomorrow will be cold and windy again, but as my friend says, 'count your blessings in the morning, thank God for them, and go on and enjoy the happening of each moment of the day'. My daffodils and hyacinths are blooming and look wonderful. They give me joy each day. The buds are on the cherry tree. What more could I ask for? Thanks be to God.

Bosnia IST 2018

Thank you St Timothy for your response to this years IST. The travel team (13 out of 16 pictured here) is busy preparing music, games, drama and service for this years camps. As reported last month the Angel Circle has begun working on Pocket Hearts and now, Sunday School has agreed to collect sports equipment donations for a friendship camp.

Thank you Sunday school kids and families! Soccer balls, Volley balls and Basketballs will be signed as gifts on the last day of Sunday school May 13. I ask all for their gifts of prayers, time, talents and financial donations as we prepare. Checks can be made out to St Timothy and placed in the offering plate with a note or "Bosnia IST" in the memo line. Financial donations will go to sponsor a camp the main expenses of which are lunch for all the teachers and students attending and payment to our interpreters. Right now only 3 of our 7 scheduled camps are fully sponsored so a donation of any amount is appreciated. Please check out the new and improved website www.servantttrips.org and contact me if you have any questions on this ministry.

As always it's... God's Work, Our Hands!

North Jersey Interfaith Cares (NJIC)

Between Easter, various school Spring Breaks (ha ha) and Mother Nature, ESL class time has been lacking this past month. What hasn't waned is the students eagerness to learn. While the current program is scheduled to end mid-May there is interest in continuing some kind of ESL training through the summer months. Volunteers are now being solicited for their input. No specific schedule has been proposed but if this may be something you'd be interested in please let me know. Attached please find a flyer for our upcoming Dine and Donate Fundraiser at Thatcher's May 7th through May 10th where 20% of your bill is donated to NJIC. You do need to present the flyer for NJIC to receive the donation. Thank you all. Remember it's...

Global Emergency Response and Assistance (GERA) helps refugees find their home away from home.

St. Timothy's celebrated Palm Sunday with our Sunday School children processing and happily waving Palms and singing with the Choir. Then our catechism students, and Henry McGrath, did an awesome job reading the Passion. A potluck brunch followed in Fellowship Hall with a game of "Name That Hymn". Thank you Caroline for playing the music. You did a great job in stumping some of us.

Sunday School is once again winding down for the year. Our last day is May 13. Our teachers will have a short lesson and then all (parents too) will enjoy light breakfast snacks and beverages in Fellowship Hall around 9:45. The students who have missed 4 or less Sundays will receive awards for good attendance. We have always called it Cross & Crown Sunday. Also, our Sunday School teachers will also be appreciated by the Christian Education Committee during the gathering. After the recognitions, we will be signing sports equipment with messages of Love and Hope for children in Bosnia. Flyers have been given out to explain how and why we help out with the New Jersey's Synod's International Servant Trip. If you have any questions you can contact Cliff Konnerth.

Heart 'n Hands Mission

Thanks to the St. Timothy Youth Group, Hannah and Christian Wantula, and Cliff Konnerth for moving summer clothing from our shed into Fellowship Hall for our April 7 Day of Service. They helped make the day a great success.

With the arrival of spring, we are now collecting and distributing warm weather clothing. Our need for men's jeans and casual clothing continues - it seems we never have enough for the number of men we serve.

We also accept bedding (blankets and sheets in usable condition) but do not accept any household goods. We are fortunate that we have been able to distribute care kits of new hotel size toiletries to the homeless every month, and donations of new full size toiletries go to families that we serve in Passaic and Paterson. Thank you for your continuing support.

Angels Circle

Thank you! to everyone who has donated fabric and to the ladies who are busily sewing quilt kits at home. Your help is greatly appreciated.

The Angles will meet on May 9th ad May 23rd at 10am. We are currently working on the "Heart Pillows for Bosnia" project.

Youth Report

St Timothy Youth have welcomed spring with a lot of fun, faith and service over the last two months. In March, seventeen of us we checked out the new Rockin Jump near the Willowbrook mall. We got lots of exercise bouncing off the walls and negotiating obstacle courses. We'll be back! In April we had a Lock-in and unloaded the HnH trailer of summer clothes for their Day of Service. We also spent some time in storage recovering costumes for the Bosnia IST and doing a little redecorating 😊 Enjoy the pics here and check out the Youth bulletin board for more as well as upcoming events. Thank you St Timothy for your support off the youth, the future of our church.
